MAIN FEATURE

ELLE

Paul Verhoeven. Think Basic Instinct, Starship Trooper and Show Girls, and you'll know that you will be provoked, challenged, and ultimately exhilarated by this already notorious movie.

The film opens mid violent rape, from the point of view of an inscrutable cat. Afterwards Michelle (Isabelle Huppert) appears to expunge the experience from her life as if she's never heard the word 'victim'. When her assailant follows the rape with creepy texts, she purchases pepper spray and an axe, saying: "Nut jobs, I can handle. A speciality!" From there...well, things take a pretty unexpected turn! "With her steely hauteur, Isabelle Huppert is utterly arresting in Paul Verhoeven's provocative film. No other actor could have pulled it off." ★★★★★ Guardian

DOC HEADS

Short docs from big talents, with a chance to quiz the film makers after – that's DocHeads. This selection looks at marginalised people round the world. Blindness seen through a child's eyes; the lurid lives of photojournalist 'nightcrawlers' in Cambodia; a day in 'The Jungle', set to the verses of W H Auden's poem 'Refugee Blues'; and more. All followed by a live Q&A with the team behind Nightcrawlers.
